Greenbelt Homes NSA Grant Clears First Hurdle As City Joins Application

by Sandra Barnes

Greenbelt Homes, Inc.'s proposed rehabilitation program received a positive boost Tuesday, May 23, when the County Council unanimously approved the Neighborhood Strategy Area (NSA) application to be submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The NSA application involves GHI, the city of Greenbelt, and Prince Georges County in a cooperative effort to revitalize the community. The NSA program is a new demonstration effort by HUD to provide local governments, such as Prince Georges County, with rehabilitation funds, called Section 8, for low income families in order to stimulate rehabilitation of housing in designated neighborhood improvement areas.

Specifically, the county is requesting on behalf of GHI and the city, Section 8 funding to facilitate rehabilitation of 325 units in GHI.

The next step is the approval of the application by HUD. Greenbelt will be competing with other communities throughout the state and the nation for such rehabilitation funds. Also, the program is conditioned on the approval of a rehabilitation program by the GHI membership. Such approval will be sought by the GHI Board of Directors in the next few months.

The NSA program represents at least a five-year commitment on the part of the county toward revitalization of the GHI community. Substantial funds will be made available for rehabilitation over a five-year period.

In the first year of funding, GHI will receive a minimum of $200,000 half to be used for planning and half for rehabilitation. The city will receive $155,000 for road and park improvements, and processing and administering a loan and grant program to GHI for rehabilitation.

The county will re-evaluate the program next summer to determine how much additional funds GHI and the city will need over the remaining four years.

The most important aspect of the program is the receipt of the rehabilitation funds for 325 low and moderate income families under the Section 8 program.

GHI has almost 47% of its members defined as being in the low and moderate income brackets. This program will enable GHI members in the lowest income levels to continue to live in GHI, paying less in their monthly charges once rehabilitation begins than they currently pay.

Under the NSA program, a rehabilitation loan deferral program will be established for those low income families not receiving Section 8 assistance. This amounts to an interest free loan to pay for the increase in monthly charges due to rehabilitation. This loan

At a special meeting Monday night, the city council voted unanimously to support Greenbelt Homes, Inc., in its application for federal funds under the Neighborhood Strategies Area program (NSA). City manager, James K. Giese expressed his intention to go to Upper Marlboro with GHI representatives on Tuesday to meet first with county officials to review the application and later to attend the County Council meeting. (The application was approved by the council at that meeting, see separate story.)

The program will aid in the financing of the rehabilitation of GHI homes, guaranteeing aid for 325 lower and moderate income members under the Section 8 Rehabilitation Program.

The city stands to receive a minimum of $310,000 to spend on the improvement of public facilities within the GHI neighborhood, improvements the city is responsible for anyway, over the next five years. First, though, the application must be accepted by HUD and the rehabilitation program must be approved by the GHI membership.

NSA is part of the Community Development Block Grant program. The city has received CDBG funds for several years and presumably would continue to do so if this program were to fall through. The advantage of the NSA program is the long-range commitment of funds to the city and the additional Section 8 housing assistance for GHI.

Watkins and Aulisio Honored At Lions Club Dinner May 8

by Linda Orenstein

The Greenbelt Lions Club, on May 8 presented a plaque and bond to both the Policeman of the Year, Charles V. Watkins, and the Fireman of the Year, Joseph Aulisio. Lion's president Ivan Lindahl made the presentations. These men have given valuable service to the community and have been recognized for their important contributions.

Joseph Aulisio is a native Greenbelt, a volunteer fireman for six years with the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and a member of the Rescue Squad. He began his association with the fire department as a teenager by entering into the junior associates program. This program, limited to 10 youngsters, ages 13-16, is still operating and gives those involved training and job assignments with the limitation that they cannot ride the trucks until age 16. At that age Aulisio attended a three day recruit class sponsored by Prince Georges County, and later followed this training experience by attending a Basic 1 Firefighting course at the University of Maryland. He is qualified to drive firefighting apparatus and has been involved in classes in CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) and advanced first aid.

Aulisio states that he was surprised about the award given to him, an honor designated by Chief Michael Dutton, after consultation, for outstanding heroism and/or a job well done. Aulisio's emphasis in firefighting is prevention, but when a fire has started the priorities are rescue followed by efforts to put the fire out. He believes that training is a necessity for present-day firefighters since they can encounter so many things that cause fires ranging from chemicals to electrical wiring, and from ammunition to bombs. Aulisio is active on the fire department committee for apparatus maintenance, and is employed by Prince Georges County Central Services where he is involved with police vehicle maintenance.

Watkins

Community Relations Officer, Charles V. Watkins, a member of the Greenbelt Police Department for two years, was voted policeman of the year by the Fraternal Order of Police, Greenbelt Lodge 32, of which he is vice-president.

Watkins related that he chose Greenbelt, not only for its own charm, but because it reminded him of his hometown, Winston Salem, North Carolina. A student pastor in Winston Salem he was also a Juvenile Commissioner. The commission, created by the city's Council of Churches, reported on and evaluated teenage social clubs and gangs. It was fashioned after a system which was in operation in California. Each club was required to register with the Commission and in the event of misconduct, was subject to censure by the commission and the judgment of a jury composed of teenagers. It was in conjunction with the commission that Watkins spent some time in New York in 1964-65 involved with Harlem Youth Control.

Following graduation from Anderson Senior High School, Watkins joined the army and spent ten years in military service. He underwent various types of medical and leadership training and served as a medic in the 8th Infantry Airborne and at the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks. He also served as a postal inspector in Munich, Germany and as a counter intelligence agent with the Defense Investigative Service. He received the Bronze Star, certificates from army training schools and was the outstanding officer of his class at the Police Academy at Sparrows Point, Maryland.

Watkins' emphasis in his police work is in community and police involvement as a two way working relationship. As a community relations officer he speaks at awareness programs which are arranged by Chief William Lane and Lt. John C. Krob, Chief of Field Services. He sees himself and his fellow officers as professionals, dealing with the social problems of today such as drugs and domestic disturbances as well as the ever-existent dilemmas of teenage delinquency and the lack of parental control. The policeman, according to Watkins, is a social worker, policeman and arbitrator who must be well-trained in order to manage a variety of situations arising in a complicated society.

Although Watkins believes that the days of the "big stick" are gone, he feels that a patrol officer must take aggressive action in order to keep a situation under control. He must calm things down but if necessary be prepared to jail someone for his actions. A policeman is there to serve and protect, states Watkins, but the protection of the community must come first.

Rustic Pedestrian Bridge in Open View -- Lakesiders' Views Prevail

by Virginia Beauchamp

"Let the people of Greenbelt have one place where cars can't go. Give us a bridge, but keep the cars off of it." This statement in a position paper read by Eileen Peterson, President of the Lakeside Citizens Association, to city council at their May 15 meeting, responding to a proposed new bridge behind 38 Lakeside capable of carrying police vehicles, apparently persuaded council members to scrap the idea. Charging that a vehicular bridge would "open a Pandora's box of problems," the Lakeside Association nevertheless supported the city's position that a new bridge over the small stream near the Lake peninsula is needed to complete the pedestrian trail.

The existing bridge, which slopes steeply from end to end and from side to side, has long been considered a hazard, especially to cyclists. Its sharp angle from the Lakeside portion of the pathway has also been difficult to negotiate. Always considered a temporary structure, the bridge, whose materials are rotting, has also required frequent repairs.

Relocation

In replacing the bridge, the city also proposes its relocation to the east, in part to correct that awkward angle, but also to move it away from the utility line right of way. In a letter to nearby residents proposing to relocate the bridge, City Manager James K. Giese noted the possibility that underground utility lines might need to be dug up at some future time and for that reason a different site for the bridge would be preferred.

Speaking as the Lakeside resident most directly involved, Joe Hanyok, behind whose home the bridge will be placed, confirmed the Association's position that vehicles other than police cars would be likely to make use of a larger bridge. Motorcycles (illegally) already use the existing bridge, he said, and went on to tell a story that made the audience chuckle about a Volkswagen that had tried to circle the Lake and got stuck on the bridge.

Open Area

Hanyok suggested, however, with a less amusing story, that the bridge be placed as close as possible to the open space of the present right of way. He rejected the city's proposed location as too densely wooded and difficult for viewers to monitor. He told of having rescued a young woman one day who was scrambling up the highly visible bridge, trying to get away from a male assailant. He felt a more secluded site would invite such dangers.

Werner Neupert, also speaking against a vehicular bridge, pointed out that increased traffic from regular monitoring by the police would also probably cause erosion where they must now cross the stream at a small ford near Braden Field. He asked that council should specify no more than a 6-foot width on the new bridge.

In response, Giese suggested that the present 5'8" width was adequate for pedestrians. He said that he felt the citizen concern about traffic had been exaggerated and that police access had been sought only for the benefit of Lakeside residents, when a quick "response time is needed." A bridge is not needed for maintenance purposes, he said, and if it is to be used only for pedestrians, it "can be put anywhere."

On that note councilman Richard Castaldi's motion to authorize negotiations and construction of a pedestrian bridge somewhere in the area of Hanyok's proposed location was unanimously passed.

Bridge Design

The only question left to be resolved was the bridge design. "Sturdy," said Castaldi.

"Rustic," said mayor pro tem Gil Weidenfeld.

Nancy Neupert expressed her "concern for the aesthetics of the park." She hoped that whatever was put into the park would not look out of place with the "natural, wild aspect of the park."

Giese said his only concern was that he should have a council resolution for purchasing supplies for the new bridge before the fiscal year is out (June 30). He hoped to have the new bridge ready for the July 4 crowd. Rather than to bring back to a council meeting and a new hearing a new design for a pedestrian bridge, he asked for council's permission to meet with Neupert, Hanyok, and other interested people to get their approval on the design. Council cheerfully

Letters Page Puts Reader In Hysterics

To the Editor:

By the time I finished reading the Letters-to-the-editor page last week, I was laughing hysterically. I then read it to my husband who couldn't believe his ears. Different ideas and opinions are what help to make our lives and country interesting, but honestly the letters-to-the-editor page is beginning to read like a comedy revue, with the same characters week-in and week-out.

Isn't it time for, (and I quote) the "in crowd" and the "out crowd" to stop playing tug of war, and start setting an example for the young people of our community, by behaving like adults and solving our problems together as the co-operative unit we are? C'mon kiddies, let's stop this childish squabbling and grow up.

Patricia Cone

Many thanks for your vote and your continuing support.

What is important is not that we lost but that the voters were offered a choice, and that we tried to publicize some of your real concerns on maintenance, capital improvements, escalating monthly charges not due to inflation, and the right of a minority in a membership organization to democratically present its opinion and receive fair and equal treatment in the process.

We have it on high authority that sharing the ride is a very good idea.

It made sense to Noah. After all, it was a whole lot more economical and efficient to get together and share the ride than it would have been for everybody to go their own way. And that still holds true today. Sharing the ride with just one other person can cut your commuting costs in half. Think about it.

Share the ride with a friend.
It sure beats driving alone.

$325,000 Budget Proposed For Greenbelt Recreation Programs

by Gerard Reilly

For the second successive year, no significant increases in recreation programs are expected for Greenbelt. "Hold-the-line" was the keynote at the May 16 meeting to review the recreation budget by members of the city council, PRAB, the city manager, and the recreation director. The proposed budget for all recreational activities is approximately $325,000, a $5,000 increase over last year. The budget increase coincides with an estimated 32,000 additional participants in recreational programs throughout the city in fiscal year 1978-79.

The budget provides for salaries, wages and expenses of the city's recreation administration, the Youth and Springhill Lake Recreation Centers, the swimming pool and all other recreation programs.

The budget proposes $65,500 for city recreation administration. Among the directives are a referral service for persons interested in doing volunteer work. The service would refer these people to a contact who could place them in an appropriate organization.

City manager James Giese suggested a program to improve lighting facilities at ball fields and parks. This would cost approximately $100,000 over several years. PRAB saw no real difficulty in eventually accomplishing this project.

Additional proposals by the recreational administration included a therapeutic recreation program for special groups such as the aged and the handicapped. The program would provide these persons with a means of physical and cultural activity.

Youth Center

The Youth Center's proposed budget totals $68,900, with $38,000 going to salaries and wages for personnel. There were no funds allocated to provide for new equipment.

In an effort to encourage and to support increased funding for athletic leagues, resident Jack Steifer provided the council with a film and commentary, emphasizing the success of their teams in the past year.

The basic Youth Center objectives outlined in the budget report include landscaping, regrading of property to provide better storm water run-off and erosion control, reconstruction of doorways at the rear of the new addition to the Center, to prevent storm water backup and repair of the parking lot and the shower room floors.

According to budget requests, the Springhill Lake Recreation Center will require $64,800 in the next year to operate efficiently. Again, no new equipment funding was allocated.

Swimming Pool

The municipal swimming pool has operated at a deficit for the past several years. This problem is due to several factors including fewer families with children, competition from the new MNCPPC facility on Calvert Road, increased maintenance and stringent Health Department requirements.

The proposed swimming pool budget of $58,000 was scrutinized at the meeting by several members of the committee. The question was raised whether enough personnel could be hired at the minimum wage while reversing the deficit trend. With an expected decrease in attendance at the pool this summer, the point was well taken. The pool budget for the new year, providing for a deficit of revenues of $15,000 and reduced expenditures is optimistic at best.

Self-supporting activities, which offer a wide variety of recreational and leisure activities, are funded by fees that are sufficient to pay all direct costs plus 25% directed to contributions toward general overhead of the Recreation Department.

The estimated expenditures of fiscal year 1977-78 were approximately $5,000 below budget. Based on budget expectancies, the self-supporting activities should provide approximately $10,000 in revenues for the city.

Other programs which cost the city an estimated $28,300 last year include: public works labor for the Labor Day Festival, July 4th Fireworks, and program leaders for and contributions to organizations, recreational equipment and awards for activities.

These expenditures are a traditional part of Greenbelt's operating budget and, in this sense, were acceptable to the council.

According to the budget, contributions to organizations are expected to increase by 5% over last year.

The council, as a whole, expressed dismay over necessary cutbacks in certain areas, yet the "hold-the-line" attitude was evident throughout the meeting.

Attending the county council meeting on behalf of GHI were Deputy General Manager, Ken Kopstein and Audit Committee Chairman, Bobbi McCarthy. Representing the city were City Manager Jim Giese and Councilman Charles Schwan.

The application was considered by the County Council at the specific request of Council Chairman, Francis White. Vice Chairman, Floyd Wilson praised GHI and the city for their efforts to preserve a community of moderately-priced homes. He contrasted this with other communities in the metropolitan area which price their residents out of their homes once rehabilitation begins.

Fun-Runs Saturday

A new "no pilot" gas range uses up to 30% less gas.

Many new gas ranges feature totally automatic ignition—no pilot lights for top burners or oven.

And models with new convection ovens use about half as much gas as traditional pilot-burning types. All foods cook faster.

Of course, you'll find work-saving convenience features, too. Like continuous-clean ovens, low temperature oven control, digital clocks and programmed cooking.

All good reasons to see the new gas ranges at your gas appliance dealer. Remember—the less gas you use, the more money you save.
